Clients facing liability litigation rely upon Ambria Mahomes for thoughtful and detailed work on their behalf, from pretrial counsel to preparation for appeals. She has experience handling matters across a range of industries, including insurance, automotive, food and beverage, pharmaceuticals, and technology.

Ambria's practice includes litigation strategy development and execution through briefing and oral argument. Her experience encompasses legal and technical issues around class actions, public utility liability, consumer fraud, biometric information privacy, trade secrets, and toxic torts, as well as breach of contract and consumer warranty claims. She is adept at supporting clients through arbitration and mediation proceedings as well as traditional commercial litigation.

During law school, Ambria completed internships and externships for the Equal Justice Society in Oakland, California, and Pacific Gas and Electric Company in San Francisco, California. In that role, she handled and researched matters before the California Public Utilities Commission involving energy theft.
