Joli R. Gill is a driven advocate who thrives at the intersection of complex facts, high-stakes litigation, and practical problem-solving. She represents clients in complex matters involving product liability, mass tort, and other civil litigation, managing matters across jurisdictions and through all stages of litigation. Joli prides herself on seeing beyond individual facts to understand different perspectives and using that insight to shape compelling case strategies that advance her client's objectives, mitigate risk, and position matters for favorable outcomes.

Known for her preparation and ability to quickly master the details of a case, Joli brings significant experience handling fact and expert depositions and evaluating complex medical, scientific, and technical evidence. Prior to joining private practice Joli worked with judges in Illinois and Louisiana, an experience that sharpened her understanding of judicial decision-making and continues to inform the persuasive, strategic approach she brings to her client's matters.

A Chicagoland native, Joli is deeply invested in the legal community and the community that shaped her. This dedication to service shows in her mentorship efforts and involvement with organizations focused on developing and empowering the next generation of legal professionals.
